DUKE NUKEM II

DUKE IS BACK IN ACTION

Duke Nukem has been kidnapped! An evil alien race determined to enslave Earth and rule the galaxy plans to “brain-drain” our hero.

Hey...Duke has a wealth of top secret knowledge! Defense operations, combat strategies, weapons specifications, prime interplanetary parking locations—invaluable information for any would be conquering aliens!

This hideous Rigelatin plan could seal Earth’s fate—and congeal Duke’s gray matter—forever! But if we know Duke, and we do, he’ll “kick-butt” like there’s no tomorrow!

But if he doesn’t,...will the Rigelatins’ plan succeed? Can Duke Nukem save the planet, and our necks, once again? Or...is Duke destined to be a drooling vegetable?

IMPORTANT OBJECTS AND HINTS

In addition to a strong desire to kick butt, there are several objects and helpful hints needed to complete Duke's mission.

Red Boxes

There is an easy way to determine if a red box has a bomb in it. If Duke can walk behind it, the box contains a bomb.

Teleporter

This device will teleport Duke to other areas in the level, so that he can continue his quest for mayhem.

Ship

This high powered flying machine will allow Duke to blast his way to the upper parts of a level.

Letters

Collecting the letters "N-U-K-E-M" will yield some serious extra points for Duke.

Soda Rocket

Shoot a soda can, and as it rockets upward, grab it for 2000 big points. However, if you are low on health, try not to shoot soda cans, because they are worth one unit of health.

Spiders

When spiders sink their teeth in you, they sure take a bite out of your health in a hurry. They are easily removed by rapidly shaking Duke back and forth.

Blowmactic Fanmaster

If there is one thing in the universe that can blow as much hot air as Duke Nukem, then it's the Blowmactic Fanmaster. When activated, it can propel Duke to soaring heights. Just walk onto the blowmactic and fly to the upper areas of a level.

Restart Beacon

Restart beacons save your bacon if you die. When activated, Duke will restart from the beacon instead of the beginning of the level.

Super Force Field

This dangerous device is almost impervious. The only way to destroy it is for Duke to find the cloaking device and use it to punch his way through the force field.

Hint Globe and Pedestal

When Duke locates the hint globe and places it on the pedestal, important hint information for that level will be revealed.
